TWICKENHAM RIVERSIDE: FOOD FOR THOUGHT

After all the decades of campaigning to make Twickenham Riverside a destination it certainly deserves something better than a block of flats.

We have the opportunity – if the present council administration agrees – to have an award-winning restaurant and welcoming community café overlooking a relaxing infinity pool.

Who would say “no” to a food outlet regularly reviewed in the national press: The Sunday Times, The Observer, The Daily Telegraph and The Guardian to name a few. It seems that the LBRuT Cabinet (mostly councillors from Richmond) have little imagination; so, Twickenham is not allowed to consider this opportunity [of regeneration] even though over three thousand supporters disagree with this local authority Cabinet.

Tarte tatin, cinnamon ice cream, date molasses

The restaurant proposed uses locally grown ingredients, all food is made on the premises with varied menus throughout the day and main dishes changing daily. A wood fired oven is used in a restaurant and café open every day, all day and late into the evening. The freshly baked cakes and desserts are delicious and recipes from the chef for the restaurant can be found on the BBC recipes pages:

www.bbc.co.uk/food/chefs/freddy_bird

Surely this is something that would be unique to Twickenham and the surrounding towns. Over three thousand people agree. View the petition HERE

PART 9 – TWICKENHAM RUGBY GROUND

A topical subject this week as we are now one match into the annual rugby union six nations competition. For those who missed last Saturdays result England beat France in front of a capacity Twickenham crowd of 82,000. Whoopee!

The Rugby Ground was built in 1908/09 and hosted its first ever match between Harlequins and Richmond in 1909. The following year saw the grounds first International rugby match between England and Wales in front of a then capacity 20,000 crowd. Our first postcard shows the ground as it was in 1910.

These days the famous old rugby ground has evolved into Twickenham Stadium, owned by the RFU and recognised globally as the home of Rugby Union. It boasts a four star Marriott hotel with 156 rooms plus VIP suites, a shop and museum and its live room has been used by Twickenham's own Eel Pie Club to put on gigs by bands including the Yardbirds. If you were there you won't forget it!

The stadium itself has also housed top rock acts since 2003 with the Rolling Stones headlining on a few nights and also appearances over the years by Rod Stewart, Genesis, U2, Chrissie Hynde and the Pretenders, The Police, Bon Jovi, The Eagles and even Lady Gaga! This maintains Twickenham's place as the birthplace of 1960's rock and blues right through to this year when U2 will be performing again in the summer. Oh yes, the other rugby stadium over the road is the Stoop ground where Harlequins have their home. Elton John will be appearing there this summer too. With apologies to Liverpool, Birmingham and Manchester, you can't compete with that can you!

Back to our second postcard which shows how the stadium looked in February 1975. This picture was taken during the England v France international match.

Another recent change is that the annual Jehovah Witness Convention has now moved to the O2 and the Excel Centre in the east end while Twickenham Stadium has brought in American Football as part of the NFL International series with effect from last year.

The next local postcard fair is at the Baptist Church hall in Church Road Teddington on Saturday 11th February. There will be some 26 stalls of postcards and paper collectables. Open from 10.15 – 4.00. Admission £1 and refreshments served all day. I will be there with a box or two of local postcards among my stock. Come and say hello!

TWICKERS FOODIE

by Alison Jee

Valentine's Day FEEL THE 'LURVE'

As Church Street celebrates its Valentine Fayre this Saturday, I decided to look at different options for Twickers folk of all ages wanting to 'feel the lurve' next Tuesday. I always feel sorry for restaurants on Valentine's Day; they lose out on the number they can accommodate, as everyone wants tables for two, and not cheek-by-jowl against the couple next-door! Hence the introduction of the special Valentine's menus – doubly good, as they offer diners something special and they boost spend per cover.

Surprisingly, a quick ring round only brought a few special menus to light: Loch Fyne has a suitably fishy four-course menu for £39.95 but fully booked for dinner, so only lunch available. Osteria Pulchinella has a delicious sounding three course set menu for £34.95 (passion fruit and mango tiramisu for dessert). And in Teddington, the Kings Head has three courses for £22.75. Most places are open as usual anyway, but it is definitely worth booking to avoid disappointment.

For the ultimate romantic treat, oysters always will fit the bill. Sandys the Fishmonger does a thriving trade around Valentine's Day and they have succulent Irish oysters at 95p each (shucking is free of charge – and for those not in the know, it isn't a rude word; it means opening the shell for you!). They will also have fresh lobster.

If you are really romantic, a private chef can come to your home to prepare a delicious meal. Teddington-based Alaphia Bidwell of Quintessential Quisine suggests warm vichyssoise with poached oysters, or winter lobster salad to start, followed by fillet of venison or beef, with gratin dauphinoise and seasonal vegetables, and then French apple tart flambéed in Calvados served with Crème Anglais. Price on application from alaphiabidwell@googlemail.com

If you're planning to stay in and get cosy with your loved one, but have a tight budget, there are lots of other options, including the ubiquitous 'meal deals' from the major supermarkets, usually including a bottle of fizz and/or chocolates too. Many of the bakers and patisseries have some excellent Valentine cakes and desserts. And Paul Cooper (our lovely local greengrocer) will have those special, healthy 'I love you' apples for around £1 each (great for Valentine's packed lunches).

The Community Concert at Holy Trinity Church on Twickenham Green last Saturday was so lively that the applause and cheers of the audience nearly raised the already endangered roof right off its rafters. Parents and pupils of Archdeacon Cambridge School joined forces with members of the church's congregation to showcase their musical talents, both vocal and instrumental. Bach to Bowie were performed by all age groups in a delightfully informal evening, hosted by the Ant and Dec of the evening, aka the Reverends Tim and Natalie Garrett. The community spirit was in great evidence. Lets have more of this sort of community effort, please so we can enjoy more of the local talent that we know exists around the town.

Silver Lining by Sandi Toksvig

Co-Production by RTK and English Touring Theatre at The Rose Theatre, Kingston until 11th February

Review by Mark Aspen

Global warming affects us all, we are told. So when rising sea-levels suddenly hit with a vengeance you should be prepared. But if you are in your eighties, in a care home and very much on the wrong side of the Thames Barrier, what do you do? Of course, simple, you build a boat, a veritable ark made of curtain tie-backs and water cooler refills.

This unlikely (we hope) scenario is the basis on Sandi Toksvig's hilarious new comedy, Silver Lining, which had its world premiere at The Rose Theatre this week. A small group of elderly ladies are marooned by floods in the Silver Retirement Home in Gravesend. At first they await rescue, but when it seems that they are abandoned by the world, these resilient and redoubtable pensioners find their own salvation, as their spirits become more and more ...well ... buoyant.

Piatti Quartet

Richmond Concert Society at St Mary's Church, Twickenham, 7th February

Review by Eugene Broad

"Colour floods to the spot, dull purple... The heart shuts, the sea slides back, the mirrors are sheeted." So ends Sylvia Plath's final poem Contusion, completed only days before she took her own life. Inspired by Plath's verse after the death of six friends, Mark-Anthony Turnage (b.1960) composed a piece for quartet, similarly entitled Contusion.

The Piatti Quartet (named after the 19th century cellist Alfredo Piatti) was awarded the Sidney Griller Prize for the best performance of Contusion, which they have since added to their repertoire, a bleak, depressive diamond in an otherwise more playful list of items.

First, however, the Piatti Quartet selected to play Ravel's (1875 – 1937) String Quartet in F. Ravel composed the piece when only 28, submitting it for consideration at France's most prestigious musical award, the Prix de Rome. The Piatti Quartet really brought out the playfulness of this second movement, simply allowing the melody to flow from the violins, to the viola, to the cello.

Similarly, Britten's (1913 – 1976) 3 Divertimenti for String Quartet, was treated playfully by the Piatti Quartet giving justice to a piece which Britten considered "interesting and quite brilliant", but which after being premiered to silence and laughter in 1936, wasn't publicly played again until after Britten's death in 1982.

Turnage's Contusion however was the highlight of the programme, a single long continuous movement which had dense and complex counterpoint

ARTHUR'S ON THE GREEN

As first reported in edition 9, on 6th January, it is now confirmed that Arthur's has been purchased by a pub company, namely The Summit (City) Pub Company Limited. You may not have heard of it, but it is one of three special vehicle companies set up through The City Pub EIS Fund with the intention of seeking to “acquire, convert, license and operate new pubs intended to give Investors exposure to investments in predominantly freehold sites located in affluent cities or larger towns across southern England”, while claiming Tax Reliefs under the Enterprise Investment Scheme. Summit will operate from Central and South-West London to the South-West of England and has recently acquired The Aleksander opposite Marble Hill (since renamed the Alba). Arthur's would seem to be rather a small venue for a pub, but presumably the owners have their eye on the rather large Green?

THE COMMUNITY FRIDGE

Teresa Read

This week's film from the Twickenham Alive Film Festival is "Real Junk Food" – see above. This is about a café in Bristol which uses food that would have been wasted.

This film came to mind when coming across someone who regularly looks for food in the bins at the back of one of Twickenham's well known food shops. Why should someone have to look in bins? Shouldn't edible food which is past its sell-by date be given to those who need it and be easily accessible in areas where they live?

A search on the internet put me in touch with a number of food redistribution agencies until I was finally recommended to look at the "Community Fridge" - this seemed to be just the sort of thing I had in mind. The idea of the "fridge" is to give local people access to unwanted food shared by local businesses.

If you are interested in this project you can register for more information on the website www.hubbub.org.uk/the-community-fridge. This website is well worth a visit; you can find top food tips as well as lots of recipes and subscribe for regular information.

If you would like to replicate the Community Fridge in your area email hello@hubbub.org.uk

FIXING OUR BROKEN HOUSING MARKET GOVERNMENT WHITE PAPER

The long awaited government White Paper on housing promises more "affordable housing". It says that more than 250,000 new homes are needed each year. Local councils will need to produce up-to-date plans for housing demand.

As well as those trying to get on the housing ladder many house owners who wish to downsize also have the problem of a lack of suitable homes.

This is a challenge for our Council and local people will need to make their views known. A request for a comment on the White Paper from the LBRuT Cabinet Member for Housing (North Richmond councillor) has not been answered at the time of publication.

A Warm Welcome Awaits You In Church Street this Weekend.... But It Wasn't Always Like This.

by Bruce Lyons

It seems like yesterday, when we first chanced upon Church Street in the Early Sixties Hedda used to attend pre-natal clinic in the stables at York House and I used to park the car in what was then a near derelict street, couple of dilapidated shops, a big factory of the printing machine company ADANA, world famous for the supply of Missionary and Colonial block hand printing machines all over the world - sadly gone now !!, 2 undertakers - a bomb site as a car park and the local treasure Langton's bookshop. We loved it's quaint and quiet, with two way traffic!! In idle moments we enquired about an empty shop, for a friend who had thought of an organic bakery/food store - she changed her mind but that was that - we opened a travel agency And that's how we came to spend the last 50+ years here.

We are still here, spending much of the time trying to ensure a big welcome in our street, with thousands of

Bulbs for the Spring and a Floral Street scene to compliment the Artisan Shops and cafes and Restaurants that have given the street the vibrancy that it is known for today. A year in our street is peppered with events like French and Italian Markets, Craft Markets, Al Fresco Dining on Summer Evenings and more. Film companies often use the street today as a backdrop for their "Shoots" and the Church Street Association energetically tries to ensure that the Street continually improves its offer and it is heartening to see so many regular faces coming by.

We have seen over time three generations of the same family and who knows, our daughter Shona may see great, great grandchildren in times to come. Here follows some historical background to what you see today in Church Street, we are proud that today it is often dubbed the Jewel in the Crown of Twickenham.

Last July we celebrated 50 years of business in this street, within which we chaired the Church Street Association and in later years, since 2012, the Twickenham Town Business Association.

Feel the Love!
In Church Street Twickenham...

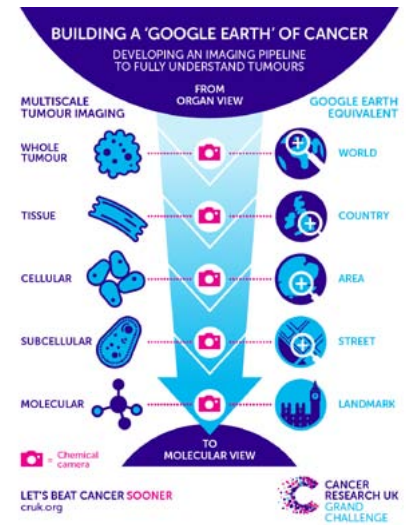

Valentine Fayre Sat 11 February
From 12 midday until 6pm www.ttba.org.uk

Don't miss the Church Street Valentine Fayre! There will be stalls with all kinds of gifts, cakes, street food, a dog groomer and also live entertainment. There may also be a mystery gift from the Saint Valentine of Church Street!

There are a few theories about the origin of valentines. One of the most popular stories is the one based in the time of the Roman Empire, when there was a cruel emperor called Claudius. He made it illegal for couples to marry because he needed single soldiers to sign up to his army, and he thought that they would make better soldiers if the men were single as they wouldn't worry about the fate of their wives and children if they were to die in battle. But Christianity also existed at this time and there was a Christian Priest called Valentine who married couples in secret. He was caught and sentenced to death for his disobedience. In prison he befriended his jailer's blind daughter who the jailer asked the priest to teach. A miracle happened to the girl and whilst having lessons from Valentine, her sight was restored. His death sentence was the 14th of February and he left a message to the girl signed "from your Valentine". After his death Valentine was canonised and became a saint and the day was forever associated with love & friendship, the giving of gifts, cards, letters and flowers.

Researchers based in Teddington are set to receive £16 million to help create the 'Google Earth' of cancer tumours

The funding will come from the first Cancer Research UK Grand Challenge awards – set up to revolutionise the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cancer and help scientists attack some of the hardest, unanswered questions in cancer research.

The scientists are aiming to develop the 'Google Earth' of tumour mapping, creating a reproducible, standardised way to fully understand different tumours in unprecedented detail. Scientists hope this information will help them better understand cancer and potentially lead to new and better ways to diagnose and treat the disease.

Lead researcher Dr Josephine Bunch, is based at the National Physical Laboratory in Teddington.

Government consultation: night flights from Heathrow Airport

Deadline 28 February

If you are unhappy with loud, low flying planes, especially during the night time hours when you want to sleep, then be sure to express your views during the consultation sessions held by the government. Our MP Dr Tania Mathias has expressed concerns in parliament about the negative impact of planes on increased health issues, intolerably high pollution levels that break World Health Organization standards, and the fact that 30% of all excessive airplane noise across 27 European countries is generated by Heathrow planes. However, Chris Grayling continues to ignore Tania's, Teddington Action Group (TAG), among other group concerns and has made the consultation process unnecessarily complex as a way to dismiss inconvenient (negative) views.

- Official reports validate that compared with 2011/12
- planes are flying at lower altitudes for longer before they climb to quieter and less polluting levels
- the frequency of flights over Twickenham/Teddington has increased more than 29% - so imagine the impact of 265,000 more flights!!
- A380s (flown early morning and after 10pm) ARE louder than other planes (yet were claimed to be quieter)
- Flight path routes are being consolidated which means more flights with less respite

So if you are not happy with flight noise now and want to shape the future, be sure to express your views at a consultation session. They will be held from 11.00 – 20.00

- Wednesday Feb 15 at Kingston University, Penrhyn Road, Kingston upon Thames KT1 2EE
- Thursday Feb 23 at York House on Richmond Road in Twickenham TW1 3AA
- Friday March 10 at RACC on Parkshot in Richmond TW9 2RE

PORT OF LONDON AUTHORITY LAUNCHES TIDAL THAMES APP

The Port of London Authority (PLA) has launched a free app to provide everyone with an interest in navigating on the Thames with easy access to the latest information on the tidal river.

The PLA's first ever app is aimed at making planning trips on the Thames easier. 'Must have' data is available instantly including live tidal data from twelve locations along the 95 mile tidal river and an alerts system for Notices to Mariners, which detail the latest information on events, engineering works and recent changes that users need to be aware of before setting off.

Unveiling the app at the PLA's latest public meeting at London Rowing Club in Putney, Robin Mortimer, chief executive said:

"A number of river users, particularly those involved in sports and recreation, have asked for an app providing easier access to important river navigational information. We are excited to be launching the app today. Just go on to the App Store for Apple devices and Google Play for Android devices to get the PLA Tidal Thames App. This is just the start though – we want to hear what more people want from the next evolution of the app, so now's the time to try it and tell us what you think."

The new app includes an events calendar covering planned rowing, sailing and paddling activities. For boaters it provides details of all the mooring locations along the river, including amenities at each location like mains electric, fuel, and pump out facilities, making it easier for visitors to pick moorings to suit their needs.

Bob Baker, PLA chief harbour master said: "We have over a million visits to our website each year as people seek out a variety of navigational information. The app means that we can offer the essential information instantly in a single location, which I hope will make it safe journey planning simpler."
